

Little Debbie Honey Buns

The box shows an enlarged image of two honey buns on a background of a gradient from white to brown. The image was most likely enhanced to show greater detail and better brighter colors. The background gradient and title colors were probably chosen from colors already found on the honey bun image for better appearance. The other five sides of the box have similar concepts at play. The nutritional facts appear in high contrast black and white probably to help readability. The Little Debbie logo is clearly an artistic depiction of a little girl probably with the name of the brand. The logo is very recognizable across snack food shelves. At the corners of the box there are some number codes and color blocks that may have been used to serialization or telling a quality control machine where the edges of the box are.
